San Francisco Bay Physicians for Social Responsibility's annual Virtual Gala will focus on health equity for impacted communities. Our Keynote Speaker is Tina Cordova, cancer survivor, co-founder of the Tularosa Basin Downwinders Consortium, and featured in the new of the award-winning documentary, First We Bombed New Mexico. The program will include an update by J. Michelle Pierce, a lifelong resident of Bayview Hunters Point and executive director of the Advocates, SF's oldest environmental justice nonprofit, on the state of legacy environmental issues in her community. And we will celebrate our Emerging Health-Activist awards.

Since 1979, SF Bay PSR has combined the power of community activism with the knowledge and credibility of health professionals. We promote public policies that support our intertwined areas of concentration: environmental health with a special focus on the climate crisis and related environmental toxic degradation; nuclear weapons abolition and the end to the arms race; social and racial justice and the health burdens of vulnerable communities; and education and empowerment of the public and next generation of health professionals.
